About Social Thinking

Foster social-emotional learning and social competencies with our groundbreaking strategies and tools. Help individuals ages 4–80 with solid to strong language and learning abilities (from autism spectrum levels 1 and 2 to ADHD to typically developing) communicate more effectively, improve social interpretation, advance personal problem solving, build relationships, and ultimately—experience greater well-being.

For 20+ years, founder Michelle Garcia Winner and other experts have created novel ways to teach social competencies through social-emotional learning. Our work is based on research in human social development, social communication, anxiety management, neuroscience, and more.

We're thrilled when we hear from educators, clinicians, and families around the world that the Social Thinking Methodology has helped them change lives, and we'd love to help you do the same!

Who We Help

While our deeper work is for individuals age 4+ with solid learning and language skills (autism spectrum levels 1 & 2, ADHD, and other social communication challenges), a subset of our work is being adopted into mainstream classrooms and workplaces around the world to improve social-emotional competencies for all.

In short—anyone who wants to help those with solid learning and language skills improve social competencies: speech-language pathologists, special and general education teachers, social workers, counselors, school and clinical psychologists, family members and caregivers, occupational therapists, behavior specialists, school administrators, and many others.

- social competencies

Teaching Social Thinking to Early Learners Through Stories and Play-Based Activities | ages 4 - 7

Kari Zweber Palmer

Guide children's early social learning and play experiences to strengthen social competencies and classroom learning. Using video examples, multisensory lessons, and play, we provide strategies to teach students, clients, and patients core Social Thinking concepts to help them learn in a group, think about others, use their whole body to listen, etc. This course teaches parents and professionals to implement with fidelity our award-winning curriculum, storybooks, and music collection: We Thinkers! Volume 1 Social Explorers (formerly The Incredible Flexible You!). The vocabulary and strategies are adaptable for use with other activities and age-appropriate literature.

Wednesday, April 24

What Does Play Have to Do with Classroom Learning? Exploring Social-Executive Functioning and Social-Emotional Learning for Early Learners | ages 4 - 7

Kari Zweber Palmer

Promote executive functioning with fun and innovative strategies to help students, clients, and patients understand and improve their group, classroom, and play dynamics. We'll thoroughly explore how to figure out social expectations, make smart guesses, and use other Social Thinking concepts. We'll also delve into our new assessment and treatment*-planning tool, which is paired with a checklist and play activities. The goal of this course is to offer cutting-edge information and teach attendees how to use We Thinkers! Volume 2 Social Problem Solvers with fidelity. Builds on the precursory course "Teaching Social Thinking to Early Learners Through Stories and Play-Based Activities."

Thursday, April 25

Emotions Part 1: More Than We Think and All That We Feel | ages 5 - adult

Michelle Garcia Winner

NEW

In this first course in our two-part series on emotions, Michelle Garcia Winner, the founder of Social Thinking, will examine how emotions are an ever-present undercurrent that influence so much of what each person does, including the ability to engage in classroom learning, peer-based group work, social problem solving, and relationship building. Emotions also impact life memories (episodic memories) and fuel motivation to tackle goals. Discover why negative emotions tend to take center stage and often become barriers in an individual's personal and academic achievement—and strategies to break the cycle. Throughout the day, participants will engage in hands-on activities and practice using practical treatment* tools to help clients, students, and patients unpack and manage their emotions, express themselves, understand others' emotions, and strengthen interpersonal social communication. Join Michelle to explore these topics and more!

Friday, April 26

Emotions Part 2: More Than We Think and All That We Feel | ages 5 - adult

Michelle Garcia Winner

NEW

In this second course in our two-day series on emotions, Michelle Garcia Winner, the founder of Social Thinking explores how an individual's emotions play a large role in relationship development and interpersonal communication. She expands on the concepts introduced in Part 1 and explores how emotional understanding of oneself and the ability to interpret others' emotions are embedded within academic standards and are critical for the development of 21st century work skills. Delve into case studies to explore strategies and ideas to help clients, patients, and students who have experienced school phobia, social anxiety, low motivation for social learning, and/or weak social problem solving. Explore the use of scales to get an individual's perspective and evaluate anticipated risks associated with interpersonal communication. Come learn how to help others, but enjoy learning about yourself as well!

*Treatment refers to using conceptual and strategy-based frameworks to help individuals improve their social skills and competencies.
