Smart Guess: #7 in Our Series of 10 Core Concepts

Social interpretation requires us to make educated guesses. Students are normally expected to just figure out what they should be doing and, often, how they should do it. In this webinar, Social Thinking's founder Michelle Garcia Winner explored strategies to help people navigate social situations by making smart guesses. Attendees learned how to help individuals who tend to be black-and-white thinkers engage in gray-area thinking, stay calm, problem solve, and meet their social goals. Michelle also reviewed the Social Thinking materials that help you teach this concept across different age groups.
